The disclosure is objected to because of the following informalities: Please add the continuity and priority data to the first page of the specification.

Appropriate correction is required.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 9-11 and 13-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Mergard et al. (US 20010044862 A1). Mergard discloses a method for serially transmitting data between a first station (406; fig. 4) and second station (418; fig. 4). Mergard provides the serial transmission to free up pins (para 0008). The serial-to-parallel converters and parallel-to-serial converters are labeled simply converters in figure 4 (202D, 202F) but are shown with a parallel input and serial output for 202D so it receives at least two signals and serially transmits these signals to the second station (418). Mergard does not disclose the serial-to-parallel converter and parallel-to-serial converter as shift registers. However, shift registers are well known for that purpose and the use of shift registers configured to provide parallel-to-serial conversion and vice-versa would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art.

Claims 9-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Shimada (JP 11-178349 A). Shimada discloses two stations with serial transmission between them to reduce the to reduce the number of transmission lines for transferring the gate signals. The clock circuit is 11. The serial-to-parallel and parallel-to-serial converters are 12 and 14. Yamada does not discuss the clock rate in the abstract but it would have been obvious to select a clock of sufficient speed such that bits would not be missed. Yamada also does not disclose the serial-to-parallel and parallel-to-serial converters as shift registers however it is considered that it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill that shift registers are commonly used for this purpose.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Thomsen et al (US 5475854 A) discloses serialized bus to reduce the pin count on a chip. AMD/Bell (WO 98/45787) discloses pin count reduction through serial transmission.
